

CO-TEACHING: MAKING IT WORK FOR YOU AND YOUR STUDENTS!

As an increasing number of schools implement co-teaching, the need for examining the roles and responsibilities of both teachers in the co-taught class has become critical to the success of this service delivery option. By varying the structure of the co-taught class based on the content and student need, co-teaching can be effective in helping achieve desired outcomes for each student. The delivery of specially designed instruction (SDI) within these varied co-teaching structures is essential to improving outcomes for students with disabilities in co-taught classes.

In this session, Dr. Marilyn Friend, an international presenter and leader in the field of co-teaching, will address its essential components, share recent research and identify contemporary ideas for implementing outcomes-driven co-teaching. Opportunities will be included for participants to reflect on their experiences and consider practical creative strategies for enhancing their co-teaching practice.
